

Wi-Fi 6 is the next step forward in desktop printing

Every technology has a natural lifecycle, and Wi-Fi 5 (802.11ac) desktop printers are reaching the end of theirs. End of life means no further firmware updates, support, or new orders — but it's also the right moment to upgrade to something better. Wi-Fi 6 (802.11ax) is that next step.

Wi-Fi 6 benefits

Best-in-class security with WPA3

This means improved protection for your Wi-Fi network, making it harder for unauthorized users to access your data.

Latest Bluetooth 5.3 technology

Offers better range, speed, and efficiency for Bluetooth connections.

Enables higher client density per access point

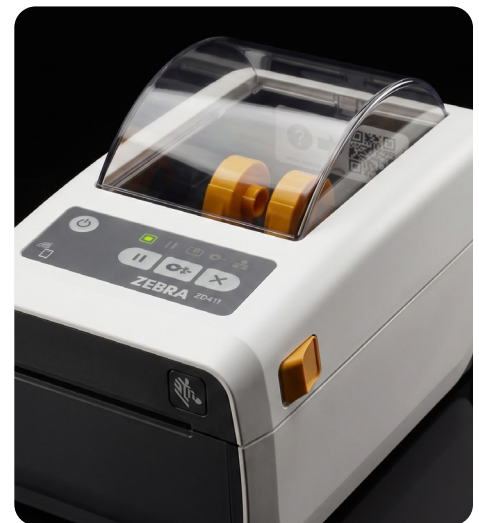

More devices can connect to a single Wi-Fi access point without slowing down the network.

Faster and more reliable connections with throughput up to ~2.4 Gbps (client device)

You can enjoy quicker downloads and more stable internet connections on devices that support these speeds.

Dual-band flexibility with 5 GHz & 2.4 GHz channels available

You can connect devices using two different frequency bands, which helps reduce interference and improves performance.
